

Product Test Engineer | London

Since we released our iconic P40 amplifier in 1968 we have pursued one simple objective: to produce audio equipment that faithfully creates a pure and natural sound. Whilst our contemporaries in America like heavier bass in their playback and often in Asia brands emphasise a mid-range mix to carry vocals, we at Cambridge Audio are sold on the unfiltered, unadulterated 'British Sound'.

Job description

Our development department is a dynamic and progressive team based in central London working on a range of technologies, and our goal is to deliver a great home audio experience to our customers. You're definitely going to need a love of music and have an interest in audio products and technology, but don't worry, you'll be surrounded and supported by great, like minded people.

You'll be working with our Engineering team to make sure our products meet the high expectations of not only our customers, but also our technology partners like Spotify, Apple and Google.

As a product company, you'll be involved in all aspects of product development, from conception right the way through manufacture and beyond. Dealing with specifications, development, testing and finally feedback from our customers.

Responsibilities

- Testing products throughout the development process to make sure they meet appropriate standards.
- Definition and documentation of test procedures and testing.
- Recommendations for improvements to both process and products.
- Investigation, documentation and tracking of bugs through to resolution.
- Collaboration with the Engineering and Customer Support teams to identify the root cause of customer issues.

To do this role, you will need to have:

- Good organisational skills and methodical approach to problem solving.
- Good communication and strong IT skills.
- Familiarity with audio technologies and equipment.
- Familiarity with consumer IT equipment such as routers, access points, NAS drives etc.
- Excellent focus and an ability to prioritise and work to deadlines.

Everyone at Cambridge Audio is encouraged to develop their careers and push their own creativity and progression. To find out more visit
